

“Hi! I'm Grace, and I'll be your server today!”

Oops, I just said that as second nature! I just got off my shift at the Sock Hop Sweet Shop, the cutest 50's diner in town!

This morning when I put on my crisp white blouse, full pink skirt, and iconic checkered apron, I knew it was going to be a great day! I even had a fabulous new pair of checkered shoes, and they're so festive, that they really put a pep in my step! I love waitressing at the Sweet Shop, because I'm always reminded of how people are all so different and interesting! What are they in the mood for? A pastry or a slice of pie? Maybe a burger and fries? Maybe a stack of pancakes? The Sock Hop Sweet Shop has it ALL, but we're especially known for our scrumptious desserts.

When my busy (but wonderful) work day was done, I waved to my coworkers and headed for the door, grabbing a couple of Valentine's Day fortune cookies on my way out. It was time to go home and relax in my Valentine's Day pajamas! They're covered in red hearts, and I like to think that each heart represents each new friend I made at the Sweet Shop today.

So here I am, unwinding in my comfy PJs with my bestie, ready to enjoy some fashion, crafts, and treats! And I have a feeling that when I drift off to sleep tonight, I'll dream about doing it all over again!

Of all the treats served at the Sweet Shop, none are half as sweet as you!

Happy Valentine's Day, Sweetie!

*xoxo
