Hello Sweet Dreamer!

Hope you're having a wonderful summer! I've been hanging out in my backyard, but the I need a change of scenery and head to the beach. The rush of the waves must have lulled me to sleep because now I'm having the most amazing dream!

I'm a mermaid, with a tail of shimmering aquamarine scales and a mulberry purple top. My hair is bright RED, with long curls. My best friends are a talking fish and crab!

It's beautiful under the sea, but I miss my home and long to be a human... Soon my tail transforms into legs, and next thing you know, I'm on land in a flowing blue and white dress, with a black corset! I stand at the edge of the sea with the wind blowing in my red curls, which are now tied back with a matching blue bow. My heart aches as I try to reconcile my love for the sea with my love for the land. After all, I have friends in both worlds, and love them all so much...

Suddenly a wave crashes at my feet and I wake up with a start. The tide's coming in, and it's time to go. I notice a seashell at my feet and pick it up. It will make a nice souvenir of my mermaid transformation, even if it was just a dream.

I gather my things and check the time. If we hurry, we can still make it to the movie theater. There's a fun-looking movie playing, about a mermaid... Would you like to come along?

I'm so glad you're part of my world!

xoxo,
Grace
